Paris Photo Returns With a Renewed Focus on Women Artists –and a New Section Dedicated to Digital Art Making

The photography-centric fair seeks to tackle the most pervasive issues of the medium and bring under-recognized artists and practices to the fore.

Passing through eras, with a hard core of historic galleries, Paris Photo offers a very broad spectrum of the history of the medium and leaves plenty of room for discovery. Thanks to the works shown by the galleries, there is a multitude of paths to follow: visitors can focus on the great names in photography, from Man Ray to Grete Stern, Diane Arbus to Nan Goldin, and discover unknown series, such as Tom Wilkins' impressive polaroid archive (Christian Berst), or see or rediscover corpus such as Melissa Schuck's work (Miyako Yoshinaga and Galerie La Patinoire Royale | Valerie Bach)."
