LA MAISON EN VAISSELLE CASSEE RE-OPENS TO PUBLIC

La Maison en Vaisselle Cassée (The House of Broken Crockery), also known as La Maison aux Papillons, situated south of Rouen, recently re-opened to the public. Robert Vasseur began to cover his house and garden in crockery, shells and stones in 1952, continuing until just 2 years before his death in 2002 aged 94. Thanks to his son, Claude Vasseur who is restoring and continuing his father's work, it is once again possible to visit the house at 80 rue du Bal-Champêtre, 27400 Louviers. t: +33 (0)6 09 97 11 20 or (0)2 32 50 55 03. Visits every day 3pm–5pm, or by appointment; open April 15–October 15. Please phone in advance for group visits.
